

DISCOVER SUCCESS

“This is not your practice life. Do the things that bring you joy and make life worth living.”

REBECCA DANIEL

PURSUING: DOCTOR OF PSYCHOLOGY, PSY.D.

CLINICAL HEALTH PSYCHOLOGY, M.A., APPALACHIAN STATE UNIVERSITY, '14

PSYCHOLOGY, B.A., APPALACHIAN STATE UNIVERSITY, '11

Rebecca chose to attend the Psy.D. program at WCU for an opportunity to pursue her dreams of a doctoral degree in a field that she is extremely passionate about. She appreciated the program focus on Health Service Psychology, which corresponded with her goal of providing clinical services to underserved communities. Rebecca was especially inspired by the services offered at the McKee Assessment and Psychological Services Clinic and the commitment to quality training of graduate students and providing services to the community. Upon arriving at WCU, Rebecca quickly realized her passion for teaching and supervision of graduate students, both of which are more rewarding than she ever would have expected. Through her experiences with classwork and other applied experiences, Rebecca was able to build upon her existing knowledge of clinical psychology and expand her clinical skillset. While she is unsure where she will permanently land, she is particularly interested in working in an integrated primary care setting. Rebecca is looking forward to becoming a licensed psychologist at the doctoral level following her training at WCU.

Western Carolina
UNIVERSITY

Check out our great programs at ceap.wcu.edu